IN THE SPECIFICATION:

Please amend the specification as indicated:

[0030] This communication network is particularly suited to an arrangement where one local area computer network is located in a first sovereign territory (such as an Indian/Native American land) and the second local area computer network is located in a second sovereign territory. In this communication network, the transmission of data can be completed between the first and second sovereign territories without the communication needing to pass through (including by using one or more communication devices in) a third or other sovereign territory(ies). This may avoid the necessity of compliance with rules and regulations of the third or additional sovereign territory, simplifying the implementation of the game.
